STATE MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Patriotic Sons of America Have a Busy Day and Transact Important Business.

NEW OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Mayor Cowing Makes the Opening Addrress and Edgar Rice Responds.

The Patriotic Sons of America are holding their State meeting here today and about one hundred members of the five camps of the State are attending. An open meeting was held from nine until ten o'clock this morning at the Red Men's hall, and business was transacted during the remainder of the day. Officers were elected this afternoon.

Mayor Harvey M. Cowing made the address of welcome to the visitors on behalf of the city this morning. The response was made by Edgar Rice, clerk of Montgomery county and several other good talks were made.

The annual reports of the secretary and the treasurer were read and showed that ther had been a substantial growth in the order in the last year and that the order was in a much better financial condition than it was a year ago. There are now five camps in the State and each one of these reported an increase in membership.

The new officers elected are: O. Perry Everson, Crawfordsville, president; Thomas A. Reed, Glenwood, vice president; Sam D. Symmes, Crawfordsville, re-elected secretary; Roy Beattie, master of forms; O. C. Jarvis, this city, conductor; Willis Jones, Indianapolis, inspector; S. F. Cutler, Indianapolis, guard; John A. Lyons, Connersville, R. F. D. 10, trustee for three years.

A drill contest held last night was one of the interesting features of the meeting and was won by Rushville. The opposing team was from Crawfordsville, and scored 95, while the Rushville team had a score of 97½.

BLOOD POISONING COMES SUDDENLY

Joe Demmer is Suffering With Very Sore Arm and Does Not Know the Cause.

NO WOUND FOUND ON HIS ARM

Joe Demmer, barber at the Schmalzel shop in South Main street, is suffering with an attack of blood poisoning and the pecular part about it is that he does not know the reason for it. Yesterday his right arm began to get very sore and this morning he could hardly lift it to his head. He went to a physician, who examined him and found that a small red streak was beginning to show on his arm, which had every appearance of blood poisoning. A careful examination did not disclose any wound or scratch and Mr. Demmer is unable to account for the sudden predicament. He is carrying his arm in a sling and is very careful that he does not rub it against anything.

RUMOR NOT VERIFIED.

The rumor about the city this afternoon that an automobile party had been struck by a train could not be verified.

HAVE A VERY GOOD GRAFT

Young Men Write Telegrams and Then Collect Money.

Police have been notified to be on the lookout for a couple of young men who are working a scheme that usually yields them considerable change in each town. They secure the names of persons in the surburbs and then write out bogus telegrams which they deliver and collect from twentyfive to fifty cents on each one. They are said to be headed this way so the housewives are cautioned to be careful about paying for telegrams until they show they are bonafide.

FAIR FAKIRS ON WAY TO NEW CASTLE

Nine Wagons, Boney Horses And Dirty People Passed Through This City Monday.

FIRED FROM DECATUR COUNTY

Nine wagons and several people passed through here yesterday on their way to New Castle. The band was of the roving sort commonly called gypsies and were fired out of Decatur county.

The Greensburg News has the following:

Nine wagons, badly in need of repairs,pulled by a lot of horses that were candidates for fertilizer, the general outfit being the summer homes of a score of dirty looking men, women and children, went into campt at the Clemons school Monday night.

From the manner in which the travelers had taken possession of that educational building it looked very much like they had intentions of spending several days, but if such were the case, fond expectations were cut short. Trustee Will Ehrhardt received a telephone call bright and early this morning and taking Elmer Robins with him soon had the gang started on the road toward New Castle.

The crowd explained they had been making the various fairs of the State and their last stop had been at Osgood. They denied being fakirs, but if ever a lot deserved this title, this bunch did.

FLYING SQUADRON MAN'S THE GUNS

Members of Crew Fire Several Shots of Enthusiasm Under Leadership of Their Captain.

MANY NEW NAMES ON THE ROLL

The "flying squadron" of the Young Men's Commercial Club made its first voyage around the city this afternoon and went after members in great shape. Russell Casady, captain of the fleet, directed the maneuvers, and the members of the crew fired several shots of enthusiasm. In practically every case the persons who were visited capitulated, and this evening will see many new names on the roll of the Y. M. C. C.

INDIANA DAY AT CHAUTAUQUA

Big Outlay of Literary Talent is Arranged For the Program Tomorrow.

SENATOR DOLLIVER TONIGHT

Chicago Ladies Orchestra Made Big Hit Last Night—Father McCorry in Lecture.

TONIGHT AND WEDNESDAY.

7:30 tonight—Musical Prelude, Chicago Ladies Orchestra.
8:00—Address, Senator J. P. Dolliver.
3:30 Wednesday—Musical Prelude, Chicago Ladies Orchestra.
4:00—Readings, Mrs. Wagoner.
4:20—Address, Juliette Straus.
7:30—Musical Prelude, Chicago Ladies Orchestra.
8:00—Readings, W. W. Pfrimmer.
8:30—Sketches, Kin Hubbard.

Indiana Day, which has been looked forward to by chautauqua enthusiasts since its beginning, will become a reality tomorrow. Indiana's leading literary men and women will take part in the program and the day is expected to be a real intellectual feast. Senator J. P. Dolliver is on the program for an address this evening and the managers are anticipating the biggest crowd of this year's assembly.

Senator Dolliver will deliver his lecture tonight at eight o'clock. By reason of his recent publicity in the tariff fight in the senate and his known powers as a great orator the audience tonight is expected to be large enough to fill the immense tent. The senator from Iowa has proved to be a big drawing card on other chautauqua programs and will no doubt make the same reputation here. A single admission fee of fifty cents will be charged for this number.

The Chicago Ladies Orchestra came yesterday afternoon and gave the entire program at that time. They immediately won a place in the hearts of their audience by their music. They are pronounced on all sides as the best musical organization which has yet appeared before the local assembly this year or in previous years. The orchestra is composed of six pieces, and in perfect harmony renders difficult instrumental selections, as well as old-time songs with perfect ease and grace. The violin soloist made a decided impression on the audience last night with two solos and was heartily applauded at the end of each number. The audience was loath to see them leave the stage and loudly called for another selection. The y will be here tonight and tomorrow.

Father McCorry delivered a lecture last night and pleased a large gathering. His subject was one which gave his audience much food for thought, and his dry humor and true-to-life stories interspersed, made the address an interesting as well as an instructive one. He especially berated the man of everyday life, who is unable to express an original idea, and who always agrees. The speaker did not seem to have much use for the trite character in the general walk of life, and illustrated his point by several funny experiences which had come to him in his travels. He expressed the opinion that the world was better off without such characters, and although he would not want to be guilty of murder, he would push him along to help get him out of the world.

Many farmers have made the assertion that they will lay aside their work, no matter how busy they may be, to attend the Chautauqua on Indiana day. It is thought by the most conservative manager that the crowd for the day tomorrow will be the largest in the history of the Chautauqua in this county. Kin Hubbard, the originator of Abe Martin in the News, is billed to entertain the audience tomorrow night with sketches and some interesting studies in drawing as well as his numerous humorous remarks, which he may intersperse during his work. He is on the program for the afternoon, but by special arrangement he will be placed on at night and Juliette Strauss, who is on the program at that time, will give an address in the afternoon. Among the other notables to appear on the program tomorrow are W. W. Pfrimmer, the Kankakee humorist and poet, Mrs. Jessie Nay Wagoner of Knightstown, reader; Alonzo Rice, the Shelby county poet, who is gradually gaining recognition for his work.

Y. M. C. C. PLANS FOR SHOW FAIR WEEK

Effort Will be Made to Get a Good Stock Company Here on Per Cent Basis.

IN LARGE CHAUTAUQUA TENT

The Young Men's Commercial Club has begun negotiations with a good stock company for fair week. It is probable that the exhibits will be given under the large Chautauqua tent and the ground tentatively selected for the show is at the foot of Second street, just across the race. The club will bring the company here on a per cent basis, and will get a high class company for the week's engagement. It is thought a good sum of money can be raised in this way for the running expenses of the club in its efforts to get new factories.

BRYAN TO CONSIDER RUSHVILLE IN LIST

Commoner Tells J. A. Titsworth he Will Make Only 35 Chautauqua Engagements Next Year.

THEY MEET BY AN ACCIDENT

John A. Titsworth, who returned last night from a business trip to Chicago, drew a seat in the chair car from Chicago to Indianapolis slam-bang up against William Jennings Bryan and the two had quite a chat. Mr. Bryan says he will only make thirty-five chautauqua engagements next season, and at the earnest request of Mr. Titsworth—who is chairman of the local chautauqua program committee—Mr. Bryan said he would remember Rushville and would be exceedingly glad to include this city in his itinerary. He is one of the biggest drawing cards on the lyceum stage.

BRICK PLANT WILL BE SOLD

Date of Sale of Factory is Set for August 21.

The Rushville Brick company's plant will be sold at Megee & Kiplinger's office August 21. The plant is one of the most up-to-date establishments of its kind in the State and has a capacity of 30,000 bricks daily. On the 21½ acres of ground there are several good buildings in addition to the factory proper. It is thought the plant can be made one of the most thriving industries in this part of the State.

TEACHERS ENJOY GOOD INSTITUTE

Instructors Deliver Two Lectures Each Day—Large Attendance at Each Session.

THE WORK IS VERY HELPFUL

The second day's session of the teachers' institute was enjoyed today by a large number of teachers in the court house assembly room. This morning Miss Rosa R. Mikles delivered an address on the subject "Intensive Work," and Dr. A. J. Kinneman on "The Four Organizing Questions."

In the afternoon Miss Mikles gave a lecture on "The Appeal of Poetry" and Dr. Kinneman on "Prevention." Supt. Orlando Randall expects this year's meeting to be very instructive as well as enjoyable. The instructors are giving lectures daily, which will be very useful to the teachers in their work.

CAN NOT GO OUT OF PRESCRIBED ROUTE

School Hack Question Was Settled by a Recent Decision of the Supreme Court.

COUNTY TRUSTEES ARE GLAD

The township trustees of Fayette county, as well as those the State over are very glad to have the school hack question settled, as it was by a recent decision of the Supreme court on a test case carried to it from Marion county. By the decision it will hereafter be unlawful for any township school hack to go off of its prescribed route to gather up any child or children. The hack must stay on the route laid out for it.

This matter has caused a great deal of annoyance in this county, both to the hack drivers and to patrons who believed their children, though living off the regular route of the school 'bus, should be gathered up by the driver nevertheless. The law on the matter will be generally welcome to township trustees over the State.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Beaver entertained at dinner Sunday at their beautiful country home in Noble township the following guests: Misses Bertha Miller and Evelyn Knecht, Oscar Hood and John Miller of Mays, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hay of Rushville, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Oneal and daughter Lavon of New Salem, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Williams and little daughter Thelma.

CYCLISTS START ON A LONG RUN

Motor Friends Left Cleveland This Morning and Are Expected Here Wednesday Afternoon.

ONE HUNDRED CONTESTANTS

However, Many Will Probably be Down and Out Before They Reach This City.

More than one hundred motorcyclist left Cleveland this morning on the endurance run from that city to Indianapolis. The motorcyclists will pass through this city some time tomorrow afternoon. The entrants will stop at Columbus, Ohio, tonight, covering a distance of 174 miles today. The distance from Columbus to Indianapolis is 190 miles.

The hill climbing contest in Connersville will be one of the principal events of the run.

The schedule calls for a twenty-mile-an-hour average, but it is extremely doubtful if the men and the machines can keep to the schedule, and many of the contestants who have been over the course for their own information say that the run will not evolve over half a dozen perfect score winners. Others say that Columbus will see fully two-thirds of the ninety entrants retired for keeps. The course is a tough one and the worst in the history of the federation. Among the possible winners and men picked to produce a winner are A. B. Swanson, the terrible Swede of the Indian team, who hails from Providence and who holds the New York-to-Chicago record.

Swanson rode over the road to Cleveland from Providence as a sort of preliminary canter for the endurance contest and made the 440 miles from Rochester, N. J., in twenty-one hours, arriving in Cleveland late Saturday more dead than alive.

Another warm proposition is little Charles Spencer of the Springfield Indian team, who defeated Fred Huyck, the amateur champion, twice in one day two weeks ago, and who Saturday afternoon on the Valley track at the meet of the Cleveland Motorcycle club races cleaned up four out of five races and lowered the track record. Spencer, though but 20 years old, is head tester in the Indian factory and can ride like a fiend and has in addition extremely good judgment.

WILL ATTEND ON RUSHVILLE DAY

Numerous Old Settlers Have Planned to Go to Andersonville Home-Coming Thursday.

LATCH STRING IS ALWAYS OUT

Thursday will be Rushville day at the Andersonville home-coming and Rushville is going to be well represented too. The home coming opened yesterday with the usual first-day crowd. A number of former residents were present and all enjoyed the pleasures of returning to their old homes where the latch string is always out.

A number of old settlers from this city will go Thursday to attend the home-coming. A. E. Martin is on the program for a speech and also A. J. Ross of Andersonville. Many forms of entertainment have been planned for the guests.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a- million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Prest., Buffalo, N. Y.

ASKED TO PAY SECOND TIME

Indiana Going After Disputed Insurance Taxes.

MONEY THAT AUDITORS KEPT

Under Interpretation Given to the Old Fee System, Auditors Retained Ten Per Cent of Insurance Taxes Paid the State—Supreme Court Held That This Sum Is Not Collectable From Former Officials, and Insurance Companies Will Be Asked to Pay Taxes a Second Time.

Indianapolis, Aug. 10.—The insurance department of the office of the auditor of state is preparing to send out notices calling upon more than 200 outside insurance companies operating in the state from 1891 to 1895 for payment of insurance tax arrears amounting to over $41,000. These companies once paid or thought they paid, the amounts now declared due, and a vigorous objection is expected to come from them.

The trouble arises from the fact that the insurance companies used to pay certain taxes to state auditors, although the law read that the taxes should be paid into the state treasury. Former auditors under the old fee system retained 10 per cent of the money thus paid in, although they were not authorized to make such collections. The supreme court recently held that the state could not recover from the auditors because they were not legally agents of the state in the matter. Theoretically, therefore, the money paid to the auditors was never paid to the state, and now the state seeks to recover from the insurance companies.

The attempt of the auditor of state to collect the $41,413.23, which consists of fees retained by former Auditors Americus C. Daily and J. Oscar Henderson, followed a supreme court decision recently handed down, in which the court held that the state could not recover from Daily the amount he had retained. Dailey's share of the $41,413.23 amounted to $13,503.38, while Henderson received $27,909.85.

CHILD'S SHOCKING DEATH

Little Girl Was Drawn Into Grain Chute at Her Father's Elevator.

Oxford, O., Aug. 10.—Martin Davis, age twelve years, daughter of Owen Davis, a grain dealer living at College Corner, Ind., five miles from here, was smothered to death in her father's grain elevator, Saturday evening. The little girl, with a companion, was playing in the elevator, and Marion had climbed into a bin containing about five hundred bushels of wheat. A large galvanized iron chute connects with the bottom of the bin and is used for filling freight cars. Employes of the elevator, not knowing that the children were in the building, started to load a car. Marian was caught when the wheat began to move, and was dragged into the chute. Her playmate ran downstairs and gave the alarm, but the child was dead when taken out.

FIRST DEGREE MURDER

State Demands This Form of Indictment Against Dr. Ross.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 10.—The Delaware county grand jury has met in special session to indict Dr. Nelson B. Ross. The young Muncie physician, now in jail here, last Thursday shot and almost instantly killed Daniel Linder, a Muncie & Portland traction conductor, in a quarrel over the payment of ten cents excess fare. Nearly all of those who were passengers aboard the car at the time of the tragedy were summoned as witnesses, as were many others. The state is demanding an indictment charging murder in the first degree.

Rose Poly Junior Drowned.

Terre Haute Ind., Aug. 10.—Harry Drake, twenty-three years old, a junior at Rose Polytechnic, was drowned in the Wabash above the city. A year ago another member of his class, Edward Cosand, was drowned while bathing near the city.

GARY PEOPLE APPEAL TO KNOTTS FOR BEER

Ask the "Mayor" to Take Off the "Lid."

Gary, Ind., Aug. 10.—A large number of private citizens as well as many business men of Gary wish beer, if the reform element in this city does not. A petition with over five hundred signatures of prominent business men, and headed by F. N. Deen, has been sent to Thomas E. Knotts, president of the town board, but known as "mayor," asking that he should allow beer wagons to deliver beer to private families in Gary with the restrictions that only one case should be allowed each person a week. The following is the petition:

"We the undersigned citizens of Gary, earnestly appeal to you in behalf of our citizens to allow beer wagons to deliver beer to private houses and restrict drivers of said beer wagons to allow but one case to each customer and not to exceed two cases a week. Wagons not to be allowed to deliver beer to places that have the name of running "blind pigs."

Kentucky Negro Hasn't Been Seen Since He Was Led to the Woods.

Cadiz, Ky., Aug. 10.—An unknown negro has been taken to the woods some miles east of this town, and presumably lynched for attempting a criminal assault on the ten-year-old daughter of Thomas Waddington, a prosperous farmer. The attempt was made while the girl was on her way from her home to a hayfield where her father and brother were working. She broke away and gave the alarm to her brothers, who, aided by neighbors, speedily caught the negro. The negro was taken to the woods by the crowd and nothing has since been heard of him.

Unable to be Present They Send a Letter

Many members of the Matlock family were unable to be present at their annual reunion held recently in Indianapolis and sent letters instead to be read before the gathering. The family is one of the oldest in this county and still has many survivors. The two following letters were sent to the president and real at the meeting of the family:

Mrs. S. H. Matlock, Pres., Mrs. Harry Matlock, Sec., of the Matlock Re-Union Society:

For the beautiful card bearing the kind invitation to join with you in your seventh annual meeting, accept sincere thanks. This greatly appreciated remembrance brings anew many delightful hours spent with "the Matlocks" that render very real the regrets that we cannot join with you in this meeting in which you will recall the past, so fraught with sweet memories, and talk of the present filled with its joys, and peer into the future ladened with its dim mystery, that you must seek to read through the rose tints of hope. Yet, if it be true that mind and heart can be in unison with distance intervening, I will be with you in spirit. And perchance, those honored ones, whose well remembered faces greet us from the treasured card, will in "angel presence" linger over you, all the while bestowing gracious benediction of "Peace upon you my children gathered here."

While looking upon the pictures, so like to them in life, I fancied the lips must move and utter the old time kindly greetings. But oh, those "voices are now stilled." So I went down the road to "yesterday," such a lovely road, leading to the enchanted memory mansion, whose charmed doors swing open when you call. Down the hall a little way lies a volume richly bound in "evergreen," bearing the same unfading colors in the title "Beech Grove." Turning its pages I read "Father Matlock is sick." How we missed his kindly smile and genial greeting all those weary days. Can it be that almost a score and a half of years have come and gone since on that page was traced his passing. And oh, the pages then, filled with the record of our joys, the bright, bright hours, mingled ever and anon with sadness and sorrow as all earthly records must be, but always and ever those pages are framed in love and pride in our home—"Beech Grove, our Beech Grove"—one never to be forgotten picture standing there in all its beauty. The sweet, saintly face of Mother Matlock, as in our precious little school room she sits surrounded by her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren — four generations studying our blessed Bible together. How often I have wished for the artist's gift that I might paint it for you! I am sure you will recall this Sabbath, some of the sweetness of these blessed hours—there were none other like them—and of other joyous times and of some that held grief in its fullness, hours that knit our souls in bonds of friendship, that have never been loosened.

Then, dear friends, can I ever forget you? You, the friends who never failed me? Can I while life remains forget to wish for you one and all the best that earth holds while here, and that each name may be written in that book over there by our Father's own hand for His Son, our Savior, so that the eternal reunion may be full.

"Oh tell me, Savior of our souls
Shall we all be there,
In that home so bright and fair,
As the jewels of His love
In the paradise above
Shall we all be there?
The Lord be with you,

Sincerely,
MRS. E. H. M. BERRY.

Colorado Springs, July 20, 1909.
Mrs. Harry Matlock, Kokomo, Ind:

Dear Madam—Your invitation for the reunion to be held on the first of August reached us today. It was kind of you to remember us, and its coming brought to mind many happy memories of the old days.

It seems I should know most of those who shall come together there, and if only it were possible I am sure nothing could give me greater pleasure than to meet you all and renew my youth with those with whom I mingled as a boy.

Perhaps at another time it shall be my happiness to do so. In the meantime give my very best regards to the family and know tha we shall be with you in spirit.

Sincerely Yours,
ED, P. and MARGARET HUFFERD.

Rushville Will!

An advance of ten per cent. in the price of wagons and carriages does not indicate that the automobile industry has injured the vehicle business.

The new Lincoln pennies made their appearance in Rushville. The design is a radical change from those of the coins that have hitherto circulated. However, it is authentically stated that there is great objection to the new penny. In the first place artists knocked, holding that the man who designed it lacked the divine afflatus, and bank clerks kicked on the ground that it is thicker than the old penny and therefore may not be successfully machine counted. Whether the new coin will fit all of the machines has not yet been ascertained.

Already there is talk of another special session of congress. With the tariff revised, it is now proposed to go after currency reform and President Taft may call the extra session for late next fall, after the congressional elections but still within the time of the present congress. The proposed monetary legislation would be supposed to make use of what was learned by the monetary commission after a lengthy study.

Firing Line Booms

Connersville News: "Rushville Will" is the slogan that meets with much favor in that burg. Of course, it "will." Rushville will—continue to be the nice, quiet, sleepy home of respectable farmers while other towns about it push forward in the procession of the world's progress. "Rushville Will" is all right as a slogan—for Rushville.

In two years when Rushville is a city of 12,000 Connersville will still be making mouths at us and recalling the day when it had more push than Rushville.

HAVING TALKFEST.

(Richmond Item.)

The local option election in Union county will be held Tuesday, August 24. A speaking campaign is being conducted in the country by the dry element in spite of the fact that the "wets" are making no fight whatever. The election was hastened because the remonstrance covering West College Corner expired about the first of September.

POISONED BY FLY KILLER.

(Richmond Palladium.)

One of the strangest cases of poisoning ever occurring in this county was that of Joseph, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. James Laughlin, residing at 527 North Seventeenth street. While Mr. and Mrs. Laughlin and son were visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Laughlin, living east of Fountain City, Wednesday, the child got some "Daisy Fly Killer" a liquid poison, in its mouth and became deathly ill a short time afterwards. It was necessary for a physician to work with the child for three hours.

This kind of poison is used very generously in this county to kill flies. It is the first time that ever a case of this nature has come to the attention of local medical authorities. It is not known how much of the poison the child used.

Mishawaka

The Gem of the St. Joe

Mishawaka, a beautiful name full of historic interest, and is the name of a beautiful and thriving city of northern Indiana, on the beautiful St. Joe river between South Bend and Elkhart.

Mishawaka was named after the Indian princess by that name, who was perhaps as notable a character as Pocahontas. The story is told of how her love for the white man, known among the Indians as "Dead Shot," saved him many a narrow escape from death. Gray Wolf, a Pottawattomie chief, was greatly in love with Mishawaka.

She spurned his love. His deep hatred for his rival caused him to try many means to get him out of the way.

In 1800 Pokagon, the head chief, of the Pottawattamies, engaged Mishawaka's father, the great Chief Elkhart, of the Shawnee nation, in a battle and defeated him. Gray Wolf captured Mishawaka and tried to force her to become his squaw. On her refusal he stabbed her and was about to take her scalp when his rival "Dead Shot," appeared and a strenuous battle followed. "Dead Shot" succeeded in killing his rival and carried Mishawaka to his cabin near the falls, just east of the city, where he brought her back to health and made her his wife.

The Indians, in honor of their friend, named the falls, near which he lived, "Mishawaka Falls," meaning 'Swift Running Water."

Indeed, it is to the swift running waters of the St. Joseph river and the Mishawaka falls that Mishawaka owes her present position in the manufacturing world. The cheap water power, along with the bog iron ore found in this locality in 1832, caused A. M. Hurd and several associates to locate there and build the first blast furnace for the reduction of ore in the entire West. And Mishawaka can justly claim the honor of having produced the first iron implements west of the Appalachian mountains.

In 1834 Mr. Hurd and his company, with private capital, built the first dam in the State and dug mill races on both sides of the river. This started a number of concerns, among them a flour mill and the great Milburn wagon works.

Mishawaka is one of the growing cities of the Middle West, and has a population of about 12,000. It is noted not only for several of its factories, the largest in the world, but for its beautiful situation on the St. Joseph river, one of the most picturesque streams in the country. The city is located in a fertile valley, 90 miles from Chicago and four miles from South Bend, on three railway lines and one of the finest interurban street railway systems in the country. It is surrounded by grand scenery, to the north lying wooded hills. The banks of the river which winds its way through the center of the city, is lined with beautiful trees and foliage.

Island dam, forming a lake 14 miles long, half a mile wide in places and with a depth of 12 to 30 feet, and abounding in pickerel, bass, croppies and other fish, brings many fishermen and picnic parties to this vicinity.

The city has exceptional educational advantages and its moral tone is of the best.

One of the chief attractions of this prosperous and go-ahead city is its new $20,000 lighting system, completed about a month ago, and is not alone the finest lighting system in the State, but the most novel one. On each side of the street through the entire length of the business section of Mishawaka, both north and south and east and west, are erected aluminum painted iron lamp posts every forty feet, each post provided with three ground glass globes, and on the four corners of the intersecting streets the posts have five globes, each globe lighted with a Tungsten electric lamp, thus throwing a flood of soft light over the business section of the city. To a stranger entering the park on the electric line from Elkhart, when the car turns the corner into the main street, it appears as if he was entering a park. The sight is most beautiful. This lighting system is a monument to the energy and liberality of Mishawaka's Business Men's Association. They bought the entire installation and presented it to the city.

Another monument to this association is the magnificent hotel, "Mishawaka," a $125,000 modern structure, built entirely by subscription. Its architecture is the Mission style, both outside and inside and the furnishings. It is a modern hotel in every sense of the word, and is pride of the city.

Mishawaka is also proud of its flourishing industries. Among them is the Mishawaka Woolen Manufacturing Co., the greatest producer of the celebrated "Ball-Band" wool footwear and rubber accessories in the world, employing upwards of 2,500 hands and whose products exceed $7,000,000 per year. Next in importance is the Dodge Manufacturing Co., the largest manufactory of wood pulleys and trasmission appliances in the world, employing, 1200 hands.

The Perkins Wind Mill Co., whose reliable mills have been well known in every portion of the globe for nearly a half century.

The Roper Furniture Co., with its long established reputation for excellent furniture.

The Beatty Felting Co., the pioneer felt boot and slipper industry of the place.

The Mishawaka Plow Co., successor to the St. Joseph Iron Co., whose history dates back to the settlement of the town.

The Simplex Motor Car Co., turning out one of the leading automobiles made and the demand for which is growing so rapidly, that the capital stock has just been increased to $400,000.

The Veneer Products Co., a new institution with a brilliant future and limitless possibilities, manufacturers among other things of the celebrated "Indestructo" trunks.

The Mishawaka Folding Carriage Co., another thriving industry.

The Clark Metal Last Co., with glowing prospects.

The Major Brothers Packing Co., rapidly developing into a competitor of the big Chicago firms.

The Rubber Regenerating Co., with a capital of $1,000,000, is one of the latest and most prominent additions to Mishawaka industries and will eventually be one of her most important ones.

The Ripple Milling Co., is another prominent pioneer industry long and favorably known in the vicinity.

The Premier Bed Co. and the Chandelier Co., are new industries which recently moved from South Bend to Mishawaka's busy East End factory district.

Burrell & Morgan conduct a prosperous grain elevator at the Lake Shore station.

The Concrete Block Mfg. Company, the Landgraff Machine Company, the Van Dinter Organ Company, manufacturers of fine pipe organs, and numerous other thriving local industries.

Last, but not least, we have the celebrated Kamm & Schellinger Brewing Co., which manufactures "The Beer Without a Peer." St. Joseph county is still "wet."

Just on the eastern limits of Mishawaka is located the Hen Island dam, which supplies 10,000 horse power in electrical energy for distribution to this and neighboring cities, furnishing ready and reliable power much cheaper than steam and offering splendid opportunities for the location of manufacturing industries here.

To turn for a moment from the industrial glories of the place, it may be of general interest to know that Mishawaka was the birthplace, 70 years ago, of Rose Hartwick Thorp, the noted poetess and author of "The Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight."

Another claim to local fame is the fact that Wilbur F. Storey, the noted founder of the Chicago Times and former editor of hte Detroit Free Press, began his journalistic career here as editor of the Mishawaka Tocsin. The Enterprise, now entering upon its 55th year, is a successor to the Tocsin

To the progressive energy of the Mishawaka Business Men's Association and the North Side "Booster Club," the city is largely indebted for many of the improvements above enumerated, and in them lies great hope of still further splendid achievements.

Floyd Spurrier Has Assisted Greenfield Undertaker at Many Funerals During That Time

CELEBRATING A GOOD RECORD

Floyd Spurrier is celebrating an event for steady work, says the Morristown Sun. For the past thirty-two years he has been assistant funeral director for C. W. Morrison and his son Oak, of Greenfield. That is a long time for one firm, but Mr. Morrison is a man of numerous friends and as Mr. Spurrier always displays the best of judgment and exhibits honesty, it has been easy for these men to work together these many years. That is nearly one-third of a century and is a splendid recommendation for Mr. Spurrier for ability and square dealings.

The past week was the first one since the week of November 24 with only a trace of rain. The number of weeks when more than a trace of rain has fallen aggregates 37, which is a record established but seldom. Such is a report made by a meteorological observer, Walter Vosler.

The report for the past week shows traces of rain fell on Sunday and on Wednesday. However, the total amount was insufficient to make a record. In other respects the weather report for the week shows that it was warm with bright sunshiny days.

Harmony is the Key to a Boom That Suceeds

John A. Demmer's Paper Which Won Second Prize In Improvement Contest

What is needed more for the improvement of any city is a good, live, earnest and hustling up-to-date commercial club composed of men who are willing to make some sacrifice of time just for the good of the cause.

But a club of this kind could not be worth the paper it would take for its by-laws if the rank and file sits back and merely look on, or even throw cold water on the fire of some public spirited movement. Rushville has, so it seems, had her share of men and especially in the last year or two, a class of men who really laugh at the idea that Rushville can wake up and come to the front as one of the leading manufacturing cities of Indiana, and it is surprising to note how many of these men that do this to use the common street phase, "knock" on everything that some more hustling man is trying to start. If there is one thing that has kept Rushville back it has been "knocking." That is plainly the result of "lack of harmony."

After a commercial club the next thing most needed in Rushville is Harmony—harmony among our citizens, harmony among our business men, and harmony even among the members of the commercial club itself. When this is accomplished a real boom will be a sure and certain thing, but not one minute before.

Another thing needed is a young mens club whose main object would be "Rushville for Rushville" first last and always.

Start these young men in some kind of an industrial movement. Let them know by experience all that can be accomplished by concerted action, for these same young men must take the reins in hand in the future.

Let's all forget about the paved streets, the Carnegie library and the petty things that have been the cause of strife and food for "knockers," and everyone who has the good of the old town at heart put his shoulder to the wheel of progress or at least give a word of encouragement to the ones who will trip. When Rushville has boomed a beautiful city park (already we have the foundation,) a new library, paved streets, new city hall, and many more much needed things necessarily will follow. Talk for Rushville, live for Rushville, work for Rushville, patronize the home merchant. Build it up, boom it along, pull together, and above all else work in harmony. Load the wagon of progress to the brim with enthusiastic workers that will make so much noise it will scare the "knockers" home or make them jump on the wagon too, for there will be just two things to do before long right here in Rushville. Get in the push or go away back and sit down. Those that sit there too long, when they do come out, will lose their way in the New, Grander, Larger and Greater Rushville.

CHAPTER XXVII.

THE PURSUIT.

DEPPINGHAM sprang to his feet with a fierce oath on his lips. His usually lusterless eyes were gleaming with something more than despair. There was the wild light of unmistakable relief in them. It was as if a horrid doubt had been scaled from the soul of Lady Deppingham's husband.

"We must follow!" shouted his lordship, preparing to lower himself into the jagged opening. "We may be in time!"

"Stop, Deppingham!" cried Chase, leaping to his side. "Don't rush blindly into a trap like that. They've got an hour or more start of us. Nothing will be accomplished by rushing into an ambush. They'd kill us like rats. Rasula is a sagacious scoundrel. He'll not take the entire responsibility. There will be a council of all the headmen. It will be of no advantage to them to kill the heirs unless they are sure that we won't live to tell the tale. They will go slow now that they have the chief obstacles to victory in their hands."

"If they will give her up to me I will guarantee that Lady Agnes shall relinquish all claim to the estate," announced the harassed husband.

"They won't do that, old man. Promises won't tempt them," protested Chase. "We've got to do what we can to rescue them. I'm with you, gentlemen, in the undertaking—first, for humanity's sake; second, because I am your friend; last, because I don't want my clients to lose all chance of winning out in this controversy by acting like confounded asses. It isn't what Sir John expects of me."

In the meantime the anxious coterie in the chateau were waiting eagerly for the return of the searchers. Drusilla made one remark, half unconsciously, no doubt, that rasped in the ears of the princess for days. It was the cold, bitter, resigned epitome of the young wife's thoughts:

"Robert has loved her for months." That was all.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders, thankful that something had happened to divert attention from their own conspicuous plight, were discoursing freely in the center of a group composed of the four Englishmen from the bank.

"It's a plain out and out elopement," said Mrs. Saunders, fanning herself vigorously.

"But, my dear," expostulated her husband, blushing vividly over the first public use of the appellation, "where the devil could they elope to?"

"I don't know, Tommy, but elopers never take that into consideration. Do they, Mr. Bowles?"

At last the four men appeared in the mouth of the cavern. The watchers below fell into chilled silence when they discovered that the missing ones were not with them. Stupefied with apprehension, they watched the men descend the ladder and cross the bridge.

"They are dead," fell from Drusilla Browne's lips. She swayed for an instant and then sank to the ground unconscious.

* * * * * * *

In the conference which followed the return of the searchers it was settled that three of the original party should undertake the further prosecution of the hunt for the two heirs. Lord Deppingham found ready volunteers in Chase and the faithful Selim. They prepared to go out in the hills before the night was an hour older. Selim convinced Chase that the wily Rasula would carry his captives to the mines, where he was in full power.

"You're right, Selim. If he's tried that game we'll beat him at it. Ten to one if he hasn't already chucked them into the sea they're now confined in one of the mills over there."

They were ready to start in a very short time. Selim carried a quantity of food and a small supply of brandy. Each was heavily armed and prepared for a stiff battle with the abductors.

"We seem constantly to be saying goodby to each other." Thus spoke the princess to Chase as he stood at the top of the steps waiting for Selim. The darkness hid the wan, despairing smile that gave the lie to her sprightly words.

"And I'm always doing the unexpected thing—coming back. This time I may vary the monotony by failing to return."

"I should think you could vary it more pleasantly by not going away," she said. "You will be careful?"

"The danger is here, not out there," he said meaningly.

"You mean me? But, like all danger, I soon shall pass. In a few days I shall say goodby forever and sail away."

"How much better it would be for you if this were the last goodby and I should not come back!"

"For me?"

"Yes. You could marry the prince without having me on your conscience forevermore."

"Mr. Chase!"

"It's easier to forget the dead than the living, they say."

"Don't be too sure of that."

"Ah, there's Selim! Goodby! We'll have good news for you all, I hope, before long. Keep your eyes on Neenah. She and Selim have arranged a set of signals. Don't lie awake all night, and don't pray for me," he scoffed, in reckless mood.

The three men stole out through the small gate in the upper end of the park. Selim at once took the lead. They crept off into the black forest, keeping clear of the mountain path until they were far from the walls.

The starlight filtered down through the leafy canopy above the road, increasing rather than decreasing the density of the shadows through which they sped. None but strong, determined, inspired men could have followed the pace set by the lithe, sure-footed Selim.

Mile after mile fell behind them with no relaxation of energy or purpose. They were coming to the ridge road, and Selim fell back to explain the need for caution. This was the road, in all likelihood, he explained, that the abductors would have used in their flight from the cavern. Two miles farther south it joined the wide highway that ran from Aratat to the mines.

Selim crept on ahead to reconnoiter. He was back in ten minutes with the information that a party of men had but lately passed along the road toward the south. Their footprints in the soft, untraveled road were fresh. The stub of a cigarette had scarcely burned itself out.

They broke away from the road and took a less exposed course through the forest to their right, keeping well within earshot of the ridge, but moving so carefully that there was slight danger of alarming the party ahead.

At last the sound of voices came to the ears of the pursuers. As they crept closer and closer they became aware of the fact that the party had halted in the roadway at the point where a sharp defile through the rocks opened a way down into the valley. Like snakes the pursuers wriggled their way to a point just above the small basin in which the party was congregated.

A great throb of exultation leaped up from their hearts. In plain view, at the side of the road, were the two persons for whom they were searching.

"Good luck is with us," whispered Chase unconsciously.

Lady Agnes, disheveled, her dress half stripped from her person, was seated upon a great bowlder, staring hopelessly, lifelessly, at the crowd of men in the roadway. Beside her stood a tall islander, watching her and at the same time listening eagerly to the dispute that went on between his fellows. She was not bound. Her hands and feet and lips were free.

Bobby Browne was standing near by. His hands were tightly bound behind his back. His face was blood covered, and the upper part of his body was almost bare, evidence of the struggle he had made against overwhelming odds. He was staring at the ground, his head and shoulders drooping in utter dejection.

Three of the treasure chests were standing beside the road, affording seats for as many weary carriers. It was all quite plain to Chase. Rasula and his men had chanced upon the two white people during one of their trips to the cave for the purpose of removing the chests.

Rasula was haranguing the crowd of men in the road.

"It is the only way!" he was shouting angrily. "We cannot put them to death until we are sure that the others have no chance to escape to England. I am a lawyer. I know what it would mean if the story got to the ears of the government. We have them safely in our hands. The others will soon die. Then—then there can be no mistake! They must be taken to the mines and kept there until I have explained everything to the people. Part of us shall conduct them to the lower mill and the rest of us go on to the bank with these chests of gold."

Rasula and six of the sturdiest men prepared to continue the journey to Aratat, transporting the chests. Five sullen, resentful fellows moved over beside the captives and threw themselves down upon the grassy sward.

"We will wait here till day comes," growled one of them defiantly. "Why should we risk our necks going down the pass tonight? It is 1 o'clock. The sun will be here in three hours. Go on!"

"As you like, Abou Dal," said Rasula, shrugging his pinched shoulders. "I shall come to the mill at 6 o'clock." Turning to the prisoners, he bowed low and said, with a soft laugh: "Adios, my lady, and you, most noble sir. May your dreams be pleasant ones. Dream that you are wedded and have come into the wealth of Japat, but spare none of your dream to the husband and wife who are lying awake and weeping for the foolish ones who would go searching for the forbidden fruit. Folly is a hard road to travel, and it leads to the graveyard of fools. Adios!"

Lady Agnes bent over and dropped her face into her hands. She was trembling convulsively. Browne did not show the slightest sign that he had heard the galling words.

At a single sharp command the six men picked up the three chests and moved off rapidly down the road, Rasula striding ahead with the flaring torch.

They were barely out of sight when Deppingham moved as though impulse was driving him into immediate attack upon the guards who were left behind with the unhappy prisoners. Chase laid a restraining hand upon his arm.

"Wait! Plenty of time. Wait an hour. Don't spoil everything. We'll save them sure," he breathed in the other's ear.

The minutes slipped by with excruciating slowness. The wakeful eyes of the three watchers missed nothing that took place in the little grass grown niche below them. They could have sprung almost into the center of the group from the position they occupied. Two of the men sat with their backs to the rocks, their rifles across their knees. The others sprawled lazily upon the soft grass. Two torches stuck in the earth threw a weird light over the scene.

Bobby Browne was now lying with his shoulder against a fallen tree trunk, staring with unswerving gaze at the woman across the way. She was looking off into the night, steadfastly refusing to glance in his direction.

Then suddenly Lady Agnes arose to her feet and lifted her hands high toward the black dome of heaven, Salammbo-like, and prayed aloud to her God, the sneering islanders looking on in silent derision.

CEMETERY SCENE OF CRUEL MURDER

Rochester, N. Y., Girl Victim of a Human Fiend.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The conclusion based on the autopsy held by Coroner Kleindienst is that Anna Schumacher, the seventeen-year-old girl, whose body was found crudely buried in Holy Sepulcher cemetery, was choked and beaten to death after being criminally assaulted.

Some of the police assert that they have clues that indicate that the guilty person is not a tramp, that he probably is now in this city and that an arrest is probable in a day or two. The broken spade was found near a deserted pump-house near the lonely spot where the girl's body was hidden. It was taken from a pig-pen at St. Bernard's seminary, and its use lends plausibility to the belief that the murderer was familiar with the locality.

The autopsy emphasized the brutality of the crime. The body was in a pitiable condition—the head, face, chest, arms and hands were covered with bruise and scratches; the bone that supports the tongue, the hyoid, was fractured when the assailant choked his victim; the body was covered with blood, and the hair was full of dirt and leaves, indicating that the body was dragged some distance. Part of the clothing had been removed. Every circumstance indicates that the girl, who was of vigorous physique, made a desperate struggle to save her honor and her life.

Miss Schumacher left her home Saturday morning to place flowers in the family lot at the Catholic cemetery. When she did not return at night members of her family were alarmed. A search was instituted, which was kept up until the finding of her body by two officers, about a hundred feet outside of the cemetery limits. The spot where the body was found was well chosen for concealment. It is back of an old icehouse, surrounded by wild undergrowth and trees and seldom frequented.

WAVE OF EFFICIENCY TESTS

Reforms Inaugurated by Secretary Nagel Looking to the Greater Efficiency of Labor in His Department, Spread to the Treasury Department, Where a Series of Bombshells Have Just Been Exploded—The Quantity and Quality of Work Done by Each Employe Being Investigated.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Promising to be even more sweeping than in other departments, the wave of efficiency tests which started under Secretary Nagel in the department of commerce and labor, has struck the treasury department.

Before leaving the city for his summer home in Dublin, N. H., Secretary MacVeagh appointed the three assistant secretaries as a commission to work out the reform. Assistant Secretary Norton was made chairman.

Cards have been sent to every employe and to every chief of a division. Each chief will make a report concerning his employes. Each employe will make a report concerning himself or herself. The cards cover a host of subjects, including the quantity and quality of work performed by each employe, and the character of appointment under which one labors.

It is not anticipated that there will be a great saving immediately in dollars and cents, but it is believed that it will result in the introduction of labor-saving economies, and that some practical theory of promotions may be worked out.

Many appointees of the treasury department obtained their places through political influence, and in behalf of such appointees promotions have been urged, greatly to the annoyance of the officials. When an instance of that kind comes to the notice of the secretary of the treasury now, the chief of the employes division will receive a letter as follows:

"Please say to John Doe that I am confident he is not responsible for the large number of persons visiting the department in the interest of his promotion, because he is doubtless familiar with the executive order on that subject, of which I enclose copy."

The order in question was isued by former President Roosevelt and forbids employes to use outside influence to gain advancement.

NOW IN PARIS

Mrs. Roosevelt and Children Arrive There From Avignon.

Paris, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and Archie, Quentin and Ethel Roosevelt arrived here last evening from Avignon. They were met at the Lyons station by Arthur Bailly-Blanchard, second secretary, and Commander Chapin and Captain Guignard, respectively naval and military attaches of the American embassy, who escorted them in the embassy automobile to the apartment in which they will reside during their stay in Paris.

He Gave Himself Up.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—The investigation of the mysterious death of Mrs. Martha Galahn, whose body was found in Hamtrack Sunday in a clump of bushes, yielded no tangible clues. The sheriff's forces devoted attention largely to seeking to locate a childhood sweetheart of Mrs. Galahn. They were unable to locate the man, however, until he appeared voluntarily and surrendered himself at the jail.

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

Salt Lake City Thronged With Veterans.

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT MEETS

Of the Fourteen Past Commanders-in-Chief Now Living, Five Are Present at the Forty-Third Annual Encampment—Distinguished Honors Paid to Commander-in-Chief Nevius — Atlantic City and St. Louis Seek Next Encampment—VanSant and Ketcham Aspire to Succeed Nevius.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 10.—More than 30,000 Grand Army veterans and visitors are quartered in this city, with the prospect of having their number increased to 50,000 by tomorrow. Drum and fife corps parade the streets and at the various headquarters bands furnish martial music.

Of the fourteen past commanders-in-chief now living, five are in attendance. They are General S. S. Burdett of Washington, D. C., Eli Torrance of Minneapolis, John R. King of Baltimore, Corporal James Tanner of Washington, D. C., and General Charles G. Burton of Nevada, Mo.

A reception in honor of Commander-in-Chief Nevius and staff was given by the Woman's Relief Corps last night. Three thousand guests were present. Campfires were addressed by Commander-in-Chief Nevius, Senior Vice Commander-in-Chief J. Kent Hamilton, Past Commander-in-Chiefs Chas. G. Burton and Eli Torrance, Mrs. Mary E. Gilman, national president of the Woman's Relief Corps, and Genevieve Longfield Lane, national president of the Ladies of the G. A. R.

The political side of the encampment was made prominent through the opening of headquarters of the rival claimants for honors. The fight between St. Louis and Atlantic City for the encampment of 1910 is to be warmly contested. Denver is urging its advantages for the 1911 encampment. The result probably rests with the delegates from New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

For Commander-in-chief, Governor VanSant of Minnesota and W. L. Ketcham of Indiana continue to be the active candidates. Friends of L. T. Dickerson of Illinois urged him to seek the honor, but he declined. In consequence a sentiment in his behalf for 1911 is being developed. Every state of the late Confederacy has a delegation here.

BARRED FROM MAILS

Postoffice Department Puts Cancer Cure Sanatorium Under Ban.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The specialty of the Dr. Benj. F. Bye sanatorium at Indianapolis, against which the postoffice department has just issued a fraud order, apparently was curing cancer through correspondence and the use of the "Combination Oil Cure," with "treatment by soothing oils" on the side. The use of the mails is denied to this sanatorium on the ground that "Dr. Bye has no sanatorium, although he advertises to treat patients personally in his sanatorium. Boarding houses have been used to accommodate the few patients who called." The department further discovered that Dr. Bye advertised himself as a "fellow of the American Association of Physicians and Surgeons," as a "member of the Incorporated Society of Science, Letters and Art of London, England" and other associations not recognized by reputable physicians.

According to the department, a chemical analysis of Dr. Bye's combination of vegetable oils that "cure cancers and tumors to stay cured" for the modest sum of $25, which actually costs fifty cents, shows that the combination consists of cottonseed oil and some ordinary tonics.

"Dr. Bye's patients," according to the postoffice department, "received in addition a glass syringe and a weak solution of soap containing a trace of carbolic acid; also syrup solution having an odor resembling sarsaparilla, containing eleven per cent of alcohol. The patients were also furnished a bottle of "Balmy Oil," containing a yellowish oily fluid, consisting principally of cotton seed oil."

Life Sentence For Awful Crime.

Welch, W. Va., Aug. 10.—The jury in the case of John Thompson, eighteen years old, charged with having criminally assaulted and murdered Lulu Stafford, ten years old, returned a verdict of guilty and recommended life imprisonment. The crime was one of the most heinous in criminal annals of the state.

More Land Opened Up.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The secretary of the interior has designated 1,658,640 acres more of land, located in the northwestern part of Montana along the Missouri river near Fort Benton, as coming within the enlarged homestead act. This makes a total up to date of 25,466,200 acres so designated in Montana.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Chicago Man and His Wife Engage In Duel to the Death.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Fastening the doors of their flat so that the neighbors could not enter in a hurry, and after locking their two children in a bedroom, Antonio Spizzirri and his wife, Anna, went into the darkened parlor and tried to kill each other. The woman was shot twice and stabbed twice with a stiletto and died before the police arrived. The husband was shot twice and probably will die. A revolver and a knife were found near the sofa where the woman lay down, and another revolver was found beside the husband. The scene gave mute testimony of a terrible duel. Spizzirri turned on his side when the police finally broke into the rooms with a sledge hammer and tore a letter which was on the floor by his side into bits before he could be stopped. This letter was in Italian and will be translated to solve the mystery. It is thought that Spizzirri was jealous of his wife.

ACCUSED BY VOICE FROM THE GRAVE

Extraordinary Letter of Lieutenant Sutton's Mother.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 10.—When Mrs. Sutton took the stand to testify in the inquiry into the death of her son, Lieutenant James N. Sutton, U. S. marine corps, Major Leonard, judge advocate, demanded that the letters of Mrs. Sutton read at the closed session of the board last Saturday, be read in public, along with the record of the whole meeting.

"We have been accused of holding a star chamber session," declared the judge advocate, "and besides there are sundry other mothers who are entitled to know why their sons are accused of crime."

A hot wrangle ensued. Lawyer Davis, counsel for Mrs. Sutton, did not offer an open objection to the reading of the letters, but he argued against the necessity of making them known, inasmuch as they had no actual bearing on the evidence in the investigation. The letters were four in number, and they were written to H. M. Swartz, a clerk in the marine corps paymaster's office in Washington, D. C., by Mrs. Sutton. The court decided that they be read.

In the letters Mrs. Sutton in a dramatic manner declared that her son's companions conspired at Carvel Hall to beat the young lieutenant; that Lieutenant Utley was the prime mover in the plans; that he, Adams and Osterman, set upon Sutton and beat him until he was almost dead, and that her son was shot to cover the alleged vicious attack upon him. The letters summed up briefly might be described as the expression of Mrs. Sutton's fixed beliefs as to the events incident to her son's death, entirely aside from the question of adequacy of the ground for such beliefs.

They contained little that was really new, though showing very bitter feelings on her part against a number of the officers of the marine corps, and bristled with condemnations of Sutton's brother officers and the finding of the first inquest relative to Sutton's death. In one of these letters Mrs. Sutton writes:

"The love between Jimmie and myself was the greatest that could exist between two persons. If Jimmie met with an accident I felt it at once. Well, the night those beasts were laying their plans for Jimmie an awful fear came over me and my two daughters; we could not talk, and each kept away from the others for fear of betraying our feelings. The next day Mr. Sutton came in and asked if I could stand some awful news. He told me that Jimmie was reported to have killed himself."

"Oh, God, Mr. Swartz!" the writer exclaims. "If Jimmie had not spoken to me I would have died. Then Jimmie came up to me and said: 'Mother dear, don't you believe it; I never killed myself. Adams killed me; they beat me to death and then Adams shot me to hide the crime.' He told me how they laid a trap for him; how he walked into it; how Utley grabbed him to pull him out of the automobile; how they held him and Osterman beat him; about his forehead being broken, his teeth knocked out and the lump under his jaw, and how when he was lying on the ground someone kicked him in the side. He begged me not to die, but to live and clear his name. Well, after three weeks, I proved some things he told me were true, and after repeatedly demanding the evidence, after four months I got it, and within the last month I have proven everything he told me.

"Nothing could separate Jimmie from me, not even death. Adams, Utley, Potts and Osterman will never know a moment's rest on earth. Why should they?"

Mr. Birney demanded to know upon what evidence Mrs. Sutton based the foregoing accusation. She replied that the testimony to her mind proved it, together with certain letters she had in her possession.

Joseph Polzxyewski, aged twenty-two, was instantly killed by falling out of the second story window of a dance hall at Toledo.

Things Not on the Chautauqua Program

W. W. Pfrimmer, the Kankakee humorist, who is on the program Indiana day, promised to come only after the management had said they would permit him to appear in his old everyday clothes. He said that, if he had to work in all of the instruments of torture comon to the lyceum stage, dress suit, high standing collar etc., he would be compelled to charge about three times his usual price. Local Manager Headlee immediately wrote and told him to come on, just so he wore "some" clothes.

Mrs. Juliette Strauss, who is on the program Indiana day has won fame by her contributions in the Ladies' Home Journal. She is known as the Country Contributor and has gained recognition for her work in the field of letters.

The large rope swings on the grounds have proved to be a great source of amusement for the younger children. They are constantly occupied by the youngsters.

The number of campers this year is much larger than it has ever been in previous years. Before many years it is believed that the park will become a tented city during Chautauqua week.

The porch swing, furnished by E. A. Lee, which is located on "camper's row," is very inviting and generally is filled with campers until the lights go out at eleven o'clock.

Misses Hill and Henley, two school teachers of Carthage have a tent on the grounds, and are enjoying the pleasures of outdoor life. They have their summer home fitted up in excellent style and take much pride in showing it to their guests.

The lights are put out at eleven o'clock and then that number of campers who enjoy "baying the moon" have to sit in the dark or—go to bed.

One of the Tri Kappas, who camped on the grounds last night succeeded in pulling off the ghost stunt successfully. She closely wrapped a sheet, frightened several young campers who were sitting outside their tents waiting for bedtime. They all scampered away in the dark before the white figure and returned only after they had assured that spectre was a girl and harmless.

One girl camping on the grounds says her cot is so low she can hear the grass grow.

The alarm clocks have rung off—for the time being at least.

Two young men went on the stage at the grounds last night. They slept there most of the night.

A black kitten is a new arrival among the campers.

Word has been received from Wabash that Dr. Stanley Krebs, the psychologist, made a great hit at the chautauqua there. He will lecture here Thursday afternoon and night.

The park policemen and some boys here Thursday afternoon and night. differed in their opinions of what disorderly conduct was Monday night. It was merely a word battle and quiet at that.

Arrangements were made today to have Kin Hubbard, Abe Martin, give short sketches both afternoon and evening tomorrow in order to allow farmers to hear him. Krebs, the psychologist, will give a short talk Wednesday evening as well as two on Thursday.

Evangelist W. F. Shearer will preach at every service. He is a noted evangelist and a true gospel preacher.

F. C. Huston, singing evangelist, and composer of great reputation, will have charge of the music. He will conduct the chorus and special song service. His personality and voice are an inspiration.

A general invitation is extended to all to attend thest meetings.

AMUSEMENTS

"Little Peacemaker" and "Bum Soap Advertisers" are the titles of the pictures to be shown at the Vaudet tonight. They are said to be first class subjects. As an extra attraction the management has obtained the Thomas sisters for a short program each show. They have appeared here before and made a good impression. Don Rogers' song is "Husking Bee."

The bill at the Palace last night attracted good crowds to all of the shows. "An Empty Sleeve" and "He Couldn't Dance But he Learned" are the subjects to be shown again tonight. One comic picture and one dramatic offers a well balanced program. Miss Blanche Wrennick will sing a new illustrated song.

One of the most intensely interesting and dramatic films ever shown here was the picture, "A Man Without a Country," at the Star-Grand last night. The subject tells a pathetic human interest story and portrays several great naval battles. The same program will be shown tonight and Earl Robertson will sing, "My Heart is With the Dear Old Folks at Home."
